ORGANIZATION OF THIS DOCUMENT

The authorized resource lists for Knowledge and Employability courses are organized by subject/occupational strand. The lists are organized as follows:

Authorized Resources Listed by Subject (Grades 8–12)

Student Basic Resources are listed alphabetically within each grade, followed by Student Support Resources and Teaching Resources. Each entry provides the following information:

- series name (if applicable)
- title of resource
- authorization category (student basic, student support, teaching)
- grades authorized for
- vendor/distributor name, order number and price
- other Knowledge and Employability subjects authorized for (if any).

Annotated Bibliography Listed Alphabetically by Title

Each of the resources listed has a corresponding annotation. Each annotation page identifies the:

- series name (if applicable)
- title of resource
- type of resource—the annotation has an icon of the type of the resource (e.g., print, video, CD-ROM)
- authorization category (student basic, student support, teaching)
- grades authorized for
- subjects authorized for
- vendor/distributor name, order number and price.

RESOURCE AUTHORIZATION CATEGORIES

Knowledge and Employability Resources

The resource lists for Knowledge and Employability courses contain learning and teaching resources that have been authorized for use in Alberta schools.

Alberta Education selects and authorizes resources to support the implementation of programs of study. Teachers are encouraged to select resources that meet the diverse learning needs of students they teach. The resource authorization categories are student basic, student support or teaching:

Student Basic learning resources are those student learning resources authorized by Alberta Education as the most appropriate for addressing the majority of outcomes of the course(s) or substantial components of the course(s); or the most appropriate for meeting general outcomes across two or more grade levels.

Student Support learning resources are those student learning resources authorized by Alberta Education to assist in addressing some of the outcomes of the course(s) or components of the course(s); or to assist in meeting the outcomes across two or more grade levels.

Teaching resources are those teaching resources identified as the best available resources to support the implementation of programs of study and courses; they may be teacher guides to accompany student resources or teacher professional resources. The authorized teaching guides are listed with the student resources.

These resources are organized by grade, authorization status and title in alphabetical order. Series names are italicized. Grade level(s) are indicated beside each title and there is a cross-reference column to other Knowledge and Employability subjects on the right side of the page.

Note:

Alberta Education strongly recommends that teachers read all selections in the student resources and all activities in the teacher guides prior to using them with students. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community, and to the reading levels of students.

Level 1						10-4	20-4	30-4	10-4	20-4	30-4
Level 2						✓	✓	✓

This video covers basic to advanced drawing techniques and rendering methods used to illustrate ideas and designs. The video features specific technical drawing methods, including basic drawing systems, reference envelopes, circles in parallel and perspective, preparing technical drawings, traditional perspective (1 and 2 point), measuring point perspective and drawing complex objects; e.g., cars, cameras. The audio explains the techniques and details the steps used to enhance student design ideas. It also gives solutions to the design problems assigned. Students may use the video to gather chunks of information at their own pace for just-in-time learning. The teacher's notes list each content component and are time-coded for easy access.

This resource is a video, in three parts, that includes the design process, design restraints and design presentation. This allows the teacher to discuss each part prior to moving to the next. Also included are detailed student questions that promote real-world thinking. The student questions combine classroom theory, the video information and students' personal experiences. This combination results in authentic and creative product design.

Comments:

- The video was published in 1988, but the process remains the same and the questions and theory put forth in the resource are still relevant to the topic.

This book is a practical guide to visual communication and design drawing skills for a beginning designer. It is a collection of definitions, use of medias, techniques and equipment used to illustrate visual messages. The text is supported by diagrams and flow charts. Reference and instruction are provided with minimal reading to satisfy many levels of student abilities. The resource approaches graphic communication as an integral part of the design process in which drawing, illustration and rendering, and visual presentation of ideas are recognized as important design tools.

Design and Make It! is a comprehensive and multi-level investigation of graphics and product design. The resource is easy to read and would be of use to teachers and students with various levels of expertise. Each chapter presents one topic, provides an explanation and visual examples of the concepts, and then suggests potential student projects to build skills. The books present ideas for techniques and media application, and enable the student to generate ideas to solve a design brief or problem. There are visual examples of everyday products that employ the concepts. The topics are colour-coded and the labels along the outside edges of the pages make it easy to reference a specific topic. Definitions, explanations and illustrations are provided, along with pathways for further investigation; e.g., Web addresses, products, large corporations, survey methods. A wide variety of activities are suggested for students and for teachers to try. Each topic starts with a career tie-in. The teacher guide includes three examinations. Answer keys are not included, but mark values are. Several written questions are provided to review concepts learned and to focus attention on the specific task. The revision guide makes referrals, with page numbers and key words, and provides a topic summary related to the original text. Both texts encourage self-evaluation of projects.

Comments:

- These books are produced and published in the United Kingdom so all safety standards use British Standards Institute (BSI) or European Standards. Canadian/Alberta information/systems will need to be substituted.
- These texts provide some limited information regarding Information and Communication Technology (ICT) methodology.

This video focuses on the design process and investigates the design brief, initial responses, idea development, methods for visualizing ideas, the selection of materials and the production of the design. Factors that influenced the designs are discussed, including historical developments, lifestyle, environmental concerns, cost, innovation and collaboration. The video provides a broad overview of the design process and highlights specific issues; e.g., innovation, marketing and design in the manufacturing industry. This 32-minute video includes teacher's notes and a minute counter for the teacher or student to show the video in short chunks. It includes three student worksheets that can be completed during or after watching the video. The video investigates the design occupation, outlining the duties and jobs that designers are responsible for and discussing the end products for various industries.

Comments:

- This is an older video (1993) and the technology shown is a bit dated, but the video highlights the design process.
- The quality of the video is low in some places due to the age; a DVD version could be in order.

This book details the basic steps for mastering the use of desktop publishing programs used in business graphics communications. The students are provided with a step-by-step method for completing a design problem, with exercises that are graded. Some exercises are suitable for the beginner and others for the more advanced student. The student is guided through exercises and asked to keep a written record of his or her design process steps as he or she completes the projects. The general information can be used with many desktop publishing programs. Each chapter includes concepts based on the basic elements and principles of design. The resource is suitable for the beginner as the book assumes no prior knowledge or experience of graphic arts/design.

This resource, created by Canadian teachers, provides multilevel information on technology-related areas in the communication, video production and mass media areas. The format is easy to follow and well-organized for access to reference materials. The resource facilitates an individually paced program. The package includes different types of instructional methodology to facilitate individual learning styles. The resource contains information about technological equipment, techniques to use the equipment and background information related to the media industry. The text is easy to read and the resource contains many illustrations. Each chapter contains a summary of the contents, review questions, projects that are outlined with criteria, rubrics and examinations, and answer keys. The interactive student CD has pop-up definitions, audio and video clips and demonstration solutions for proposed projects. The tutorials are logically organized and clearly outline each step of the process. There is a careers section that presents students with entry-level competencies, and identifies post-secondary opportunities and occupations within the strand.

Comments:

- This resource takes a realistic point of view and provides ideas to expand and promote the use of technology in creative ways.
- The CD-ROM includes a site license for 25 computers in the school and may be duplicated on CD to hand out to students as a text. There are affordable yearly updates and others that may be downloaded from the Internet using the provided password.

Cautions:

- The text and tutorials are software specific but could be paralleled by teachers with some technology expertise.

This 20-minute video introduces students to the basic technical aspects of using a digital camera and illustrates some of the differences between digital and traditional photography. The video gives a clear, concise description of the features of digital cameras as well as the uses of digital photography. It introduces various types of digital cameras and storage mediums, and discusses elements, such as resolution size, framing and file formats. Methods for transferring digital images from the camera to a computer are also illustrated. The consumer information section gives tips on how to select a digital camera and demonstrates the basic skills of taking pictures, editing photos using software programs (primarily Adobe Photoshop) and printing photos. Throughout the program, key vocabulary, such as pixel, resolution and autofocus is defined. The video contains a lot of information to process at one sitting, but would be useful as an introduction and/or review to the unit.

This resource kit includes a hardcover student text, a teacher resource guide, a series of lab softcover books, a student motivation kit that includes laminated project and activity cards, reteaching and enrichment activities, and a CD-ROM with lesson plans and a test generator. There is a student workbook and a teacher annotated edition of the student workbook. Subjects include sewing, foods, personal development and career integration; e.g., money management for mathematics. Transition activities for students going into senior high school, e.g., peer pressure, self-actualization, self-concept, are included. The CD-ROM is easily accessible and includes a Word document copy of the student workbook and the teacher guide. An exam bank provides a very quick way to create a test. Posters for motivation in each area are engaging and the individual area teacher support books are well-organized and informative; e.g., the cooking component offers recipes applicable to the age group with clear instruction.

Comments:

- This resource is applicable to grades 8 and 9. Individual units and visuals may be appropriate at different grades.
- The kit is a starting point for new Knowledge and Employability students.
- Some of the student pictures are more appropriate for younger grades, yet others show senior high school students. Teachers should be sensitive to age-appropriate sections.

F.X. looks at filmmaking techniques, breaking them down into understandable processes, such as blue screen and computer graphics. Students could easily apply the techniques in this video to other viewing experiences. The video addresses processing and representing outcomes for English language arts by helping students understand how film and graphic design techniques are used to create and/or manipulate emotion, mood and point of view. It also addresses outcomes in other courses, including Communicating Technology, Graphic Arts, Photography, Filmmaking and Drama. The video is fast-paced and engaging. The content is divided into sections that allow for starting and stopping; this facilitates discussion. Other titles authorized from this series are Big Buildings, Fly at Your Own Risk, Food, Garbage, Spaceships and Zero Gravity.

Comments:

- Programs in the Popular Mechanics for Kids series are fast paced and engaging. Topics are relevant and high interest. Excellent production quality ensures that audience's interest and attention are maintained. Vocabulary and content are appropriate for students in Knowledge and Employability courses.
- Slapstick and "put down" type humour is used in an attempt to make the material more attractive to students.
- Young males are portrayed as being disaster-prone and clownish, which does not promote respect or a positive self-image.
- Violent incidents, such as a man with a baseball bat smashing a melon labelled "Tyler's head," and the use of racial stereotypes in the segment on martial arts special effects are cause for concern.
- Teachers will need to preview this resource to see if it is age appropriate for their classes. The narrators for this series are a young boy and girl of approximately 11 or 12 years of age.

The Knowledge and Employability Studio is the online guide to implementation for the Knowledge and Employability courses. There are four levels in the Studio. The Main Lobby contains program updates, contact information, a video introduction and a virtual tour of the Studio. New update information is displayed on the screen in the lobby. Curriculum Foundations, found on Level 2, contains activities and strategies to support teachers and students with the implementation of the four core subjects: English language arts, social studies, science and mathematics. Click on the title of the course for further information. Within each subject are folders that contain resources aligned with the program of studies outcomes within that subject area. Level 3 contains information on each of the occupational strands. Poster-like artwork displays the names of each strand. In the same manner as the second level, each icon, when opened, illustrates a collection of activities and strategies aligned with the program of studies outcomes within each occupational strand. Workstations for administrators, teachers, students, parents and industry are found on Level 4. The folders and resources function in the same manner as the other levels but reveal learning and teaching resources to support teachers, students and parents. The Administrators Workstation contains the Information Manual for Knowledge and Employability Courses. The Industry Workstation contains information for employers working with students in off-campus situations.

This booklet presents creative ideas for completing audio/visual projects. The resource focuses on using audio/visual techniques to communicate effectively. It outlines the organization of processes, such as the focus of the task, how to develop it and how to present it to the audience. The resource provides open-ended work simulation assignments that ask students to problem solve, plan and work as a team to complete the project step-by-step. The 20 activities require students to create commercials or advertisements using the mediums of video, print, radio or mixed media. The final section includes several evaluation checklists for self, peer, audience and teacher.

Comments:

- This resource is an older publication. Visual set-up is in black and white with drawn visuals.
- Instructions for equipment are dated so teachers would have to substitute modern technology.
- Media Messages is an idea outline—not an instructional text.

This resource has been designed as an introduction to the basics of photography, with the extension of those principles into digital imaging. It includes an instructor's manual. Chapters 1–5 provide a knowledge base that includes development of the photographic medium and the essential tools of the photographer—cameras, lenses, light and film. Chapters 6–10 are practical in nature, presenting many specific techniques in the use of the camera, film development, darkroom setup and operation, print making and the finishing and mounting of prints. Chapters 11–14 allow the beginning photographer to expand upon basic skills introduced in the first 10 chapters through the use of large format cameras, colour photography, artificial light sources and a variety of other specialized techniques. Chapters 15–16 blend theory and practice, extending photographic principles into the digital realm. These final chapters address image capture with digital cameras and the conversion of conventional prints, negatives and transparencies to digital form by scanning, image editing software and digital darkroom techniques for correcting and enhancing images. Appendix 1 provides an extensive selection of both print and electronic resources related to photography.

Comments:

- The text is large and students will find the language easy to understand with the illustrations and pictures. The instructor's manual includes many student and enrichment activities.
- The textbook has an unbalanced perspective on SLR and digital photography, leaning toward standard photographic techniques.

Read to Live provides information, strategies and activities that teachers can use to engage and support students who are experiencing difficulties with reading. The focus is on helping students think about reading in a new way by connecting classroom experiences with students' lifeworlds.

This resource, which is a series of workshops to enhance student literacy at the junior and senior high school levels, is intended for teachers who are new to teaching, new to teaching students with reading difficulties or just looking for extra support. It can also be used by more experienced teachers to mentor colleagues and create a community of practice.

The first workshop, Introduction: Responsive Teaching, describes an approach to teaching reading that focuses on addressing students' unique learning needs. This is followed by three more in-depth workshops, which explore different elements of reading: Contexts of Reading, Active Reading and Multiple Texts/Multiple Literacies. Each of these workshops contains three sections: Background, Reading Strategies and Teaching Strategies.

The workshops can be explored in multiple sittings, in whatever way is most useful. Teachers can explore the information in any order; however, teachers new to teaching reading or to the concepts covered may find it most useful to start with the Background.

Background

The background section summarizes important concepts, research findings and other information on the topic. Links provide further information on relevant theorists and researchers.

Reading Strategies

The reading strategies section offers sample strategies teachers can model, teach and reinforce to help students become more effective readers. These strategies apply and build on the concepts in the background section.

Teaching Strategies

The teaching strategies section provides sample instructional strategies and activities teachers can use to strengthen students' understanding and motivation.

This teacher resource, fifth in the series, addresses units on Health and Lifestyle, Safety Management and Procedures, and Personal and Workplace Safety. Each unit presents relevant information followed by formative and summative student exercises. The handouts provided are ready to use and adequately assess the goals of the manual. Safety applications are related to the students through scenarios in the home, school and workplace. The section on compensation is accurate in Alberta. First aid is not addressed in this manual; references are made to the importance of acquiring these skills in an approved program. This resource is intended for the Career Development, Safety and Universal Strategies occupations modules, but could be applied successfully to health and science.

Comments:

- The student assignments are effective but no scoring rubrics or answer keys are provided.
- Some written assignments may need to be restructured for less capable learners.

Today's Teen resource package includes a hardcover student text, a student workbook, a teacher resource guide, a CD-ROM, a transparency package, a hardcover teacher edition, and a student workbook annotated teacher edition. The resource promotes success in everyday living and the text and worksheets are complementary. There are 11 units in the text, including building personal potential, exploring careers, relationship skills, friend and family relationships, children, consumer/money management, personal health and wellness, food and nutrition, safety in the kitchen, clothing and housing interiors. The resource presents information clearly and with simple illustrations. Today's Teen could be used as a cross grade resource, using specific chapters at certain grade levels. The teacher package gives options and suggests time spans for teachers. It is well-organized and teachers can use it with minimal preparation. The teacher's guide has an overview, curriculum correlation chart, planning chart, section on accommodating various learning styles, section on additional activities and student activities. The teacher answer help provides a variety of assessment tools, such as crosswords, short answer and word searches. The test bank is easy to modify; multimedia use is provided.

Comments:

- This is an American book that uses American agencies, resources and measurements that need to be replaced with names of Alberta organizations.
- There is nothing included for record keeping.
- Career Exploration is generally unrealistic at Knowledge and Employability achievement levels. Construction skills focus on sewing at an advanced level.

This resource supports video production. It includes essential information about digital concepts, equipment and production techniques. The resource provides a beginning student with a solid foundation for learning about video production, including the idea and production process stage, the tools and equipment required and the production environment, including the people needed to make a production work. The resource is broken down into four sections: production processes and people, image creation and control, video recording, switching and editing, talent and the production environment. Illustrations and diagrams support the text. Key concepts are highlighted throughout the book for emphasis.

Comments:

- The levels of language used make this text a challenge for the student.

This fast-moving, humorous resource introduces the video-production process. Two detailed, fictionalized case studies are followed from conception to completion, and include explanatory graphics, animation, practical advice and technical tips. This 70-minute program is divided into eight segments, each of which could be used as the basis for a class. These sections include The Concept, The Director's Role, The Story, Screen Language, Writing, The Shoot, Editing, Budget and Schedule. Practical follow-up activities are included at the end of each segment. Twenty minutes of rushes allow students to edit their own versions of a scene from the case study.

This video presents the basic fundamentals of the design process and includes narrated demonstrations. It details the seven elements of design—line, space, form/shape, size/scale, light, texture and colour. The video outlines the importance of each element individually and discusses how they all work together to create a cohesive design. It provokes discussion on the importance of the principles of design, such as proportion, rhythm and diversity. The video discusses the importance of combining the elements and principles of design to create a piece of work. In addition, there are teacher notes that include information about each of the elements and principles to assist in generating discussion prior to or following the video.

The Workplace Health and Safety Teacher Resource Binders and Teacher Toolkit were developed as a joint initiative by Alberta Education and Alberta Human Resources and Employment to support teachers in the delivery of workplace health and safety outcomes. The resource actively promotes the safety of all workers in Alberta, particularly young workers, and documents Alberta health and safety legislation and regulations. Students will become aware of their rights and responsibilities with respect to workplace health and safety concerns.

The two-binder set of workplace health and safety information is divided into seven chapters: legislation, health and safety management systems, physical hazards, chemical hazards, biological hazards, psychosocial hazards and ergonomics. Each chapter includes topic-specific content that is followed by a supplemental information section with course-specific, industry-specific or occupation-specific information. Teacher notes, handouts, overheads and additional resources are also included with each chapter. The accompanying Workplace Health and Safety Teacher Toolkit complements the resource binders with posters, publications, cards and CDs. The toolkit is organized into nine sections: statistics, videos, posters, cards, publications, general, employment and standards information, workers' compensation information and other.

Comments:

- This resource has the potential for transfer to any school or workplace setting.
- The resource contains reference to a workplace fatality (page 12 of the legislation section) that was widely reported in the Alberta media. Teacher judgement is advised in the use of this reference as students who knew the deceased or were related to him might be in the classroom.
